"Kew Gardens" by Virginia Woolf

Read and annotate looking at the use of nature in relation to the people. How is she using nature? What does the stream-of-consciousness style contribute to the blurring of color, nature and humans?

Look at several prose prompts in your Applied Practice Book. (pg. 15, 86, 161, 178)

Here are a few others to consider:

1. Explain how the author’s presentation of details is intended to shape the reader’s attitudes toward the place he describes. Give specific attention to the function of word choice, imagery, phrasing and sentence structure.
2. Characterize briefly the world and way of life described in the passage, discuss the effect of the passage as a whole, and analyze those elements that achieve this effect.
3. Analyze how _________ uses such techniques as point of view, selection of detail, and syntax to characterize the relationship between _________ and ____________.

If you were an AP god, what section of the story would you pullout and why? What would your prompt emphasize?

Write the prompt. Write a thesis addressing the prompt. List bullet points for main points you would cover.
